David Quigley began by expressing gratitude to the compus community for its response to this extraodinary situation. There have been dellarges, and there will be more, but there have been nany nonerts that exemplify BCs best institutional self.

He cartined with an overview of the COVID 19 impact on BC. On March 11, 2020, the decision was made to send most on campus residential students home and move to remote education after a creweek histus of classes BCs early spring break had allowed a week to plan what the second half of the senester might look like. The are week highes between Mach 12 and Mach 18 was critical to allow nany sturbuts time to travel and adjust to being hone and to allow faculty time to prepare for renote instruction. The Office of Residential Life the Campus Police, Diring Services, and Facilities provided extraordinary support to sturberts who were required to vacate their doms. On March 19, 2020, ordine remote education began and a series of academic policy charges were put implace. Modifications included the recpering of the drop period, the extension of withdrawal to the last day of dasses, and the liberalization of pass/fail policies

It is utility that the first six summer crientation sessions will be held on campus. There may be some virtual programming and the University is considering ways of crienting all 2300 first year undergad rates during Welcome Weekin August.

The Academic Calendar has not been changed. There will be no classes on Holy Thusday, Good Friday, or Easter Monday, except for those beginning at 400 pm or later. Classes will also not be held on Patriots Day.

For classes that are being taught synchronously, faculty are expected to follow the negistrar's calendar for course meeting times

He conducted, emphasizing the critical work that John Mahoney, Vice Provost for Emollment Management, Grant Gosselin, Director of Admissions, and others involved in undergraduate, graduate, and professional school admissions, are ching to correct with admitted and prospective students. Yielding a strong undergraduate class of 2024 and a healthy emollment for colorisin the graduate and professional programs is imperative.

Billy Soo provided an update on the proposal to revise course evaluations as well as developing plans for conducting course evaluations for the connect sensate: The University Courtil on Teaching (UCI) had made recommendations to revise the course evaluation instrument and process for the Fall 2020 sensate: The proposal has been presented to most constituents across campus and the feedback has been generally favorable. In light of the concrtsituation, however, it makes nonescense to delay its implementation to restspring or none likely, fall of 2021.

For the curent senester's evaluations, the UCT and the dears feel that course evaluations should proceed as planned. There is a great apparturity to capture valuable feedback on what works well and what does not in a remote ordine setting. While there is some concern from faculty that their performance this senester will not be representative of the quality of their teaching the cleans recognize this and will need the evaluations with this context in mind. Feedback from this senester will be informative in helping plan for potential future disruptions.

A carril member asked if a question would be added to specifically address the switch to ordine teaching

Billy answered that the UCT is working with student services to determine if questions can still be added to the existing course evaluation. If possible, a question bank would be circulated to the departments and schools with questions to add about the ordine experience. If questions cannot be added to the existing tool, a separate instrument may be used however; the response rate may not be as good.

David added that the feedback received so far firem sturbuts, faculty, parents, program

Laua Steirberg has been appointed the imagual Seicher Executive Director of the Schiller Institute She is joining BC from Syracuse University and will be on campus in May.

Bill Nurez from the Office of the Vice Provost for Research and Joe Schott from the General Coursel's Office will join the next PAC meeting to discuss foreign influence and collaborations. The federal government has a particular interest in undisclosed

A couril member asked howsum er couses that have a dirical or lab component will be harded

David responsed that some of these courses have extensive content that could be delivered online with some discrete experiential component that could be pushed to a later time. Creative thirking about the academic calendarmay be necessary.
